

National Aeronautical Laboratory
Documentation Sheet
Document Classification
Restricted

Title : Fibre Reinforced Plastics (FRP),
Materials, Fabrication and Applications
EDP in FRP Moulding

Document No.

PD-MT-9306

Date of issue: March 93

Author(s) :
R.M.V.G.K. Rao

Contents

Division : Materials Science

No. of copies: 40

External participation :

NAL Project No.

Sponsor :

Sponsor's Project No.

Approval :

Remarks :

Keywords : EDP, Moulding, Reinforcements, Resin, Polyester,
Corrosion, Fibrous, Glossary, Accelerator, Catalyst

Abstract :

Plastics are polymeric materials and in their as cast form, do not possess sufficient strength and stiffness to be useful in structural and long term applications. When reinforced with strong and stiff materials in fibre form, these are called the fibre reinforced plastics, (FRP), which can be processed into different shapes and sizes though a variety of fabrication techniques. This booklet is intended to give the readers an initial idea of these materials and their potential used in our modern perspective.